Nature of Activity - Assessment

Duration with Date – During COVID-19 Pandemic.

Number of Students Participated – Approx. All students

Resource Person / Agencies Involved- All Faculties

During the COVID-19 pandemic, when online teaching and learning became the norm, teachers faced significant challenges despite having numerous apps at their disposal. One of the major hurdles was conducting exams while maintaining their validity. To address this, we introduced a novel approach at the beginning of each exam on Google Meet. Teachers provided instructions to create a unique code, which changed with each subsequent exam. Students were required to write this code on their answer sheets, which they then scanned and sent as a PDF via email. This innovative method prevented students from sending pre-prepared notes, ensuring the authenticity of their answers.

Promotion of Indian Languages, Arts and Culture
Sanjana Korah, ( B. ed student)
Rambha college of education, Jamshedpur

The promotion of Indian arts and culture is important not only for the nation but also for the individual. Cultural sensitiveness and expressions are among the major competencies considered important to develop in children, in order to provide them with a sense of learning, belonging as well as an appreciation of other cultures and identities. It is through the development of a strong sense and knowledge of their own cultural history and languages, and realization that children can build a positive cultural identity and self-esteem. Thus, cultural awareness and expression are important contributors both to individual as well as societal well-being. Language, of course, is inextricably linked to art and culture. Different languages see the world differently, and the structure of a language, therefore, determines a native speaker's perception of experience. In particular, language influences the way people of a given culture speak with others, including with family members, authority figures, peers, and strangers, and influence the tone of conversation. The tone, perception of experience, and familiarity "samapan" (shared) in conversations among speakers of a common language are a reflection and result of a culture. Culture is, thus, enmeshed in our language, art, in the form of literature, plays, music, film, etc. cannot be fully appreciated without language. In order to preserve and promote culture, we must preserve and promote a culture's language. Unfortunately, Indian languages have not received the due attention and care, with the country losing over 200 languages in the last 30 years alone. UNESCO has declared 157 Indian languages as "endangered". Various unspoken languages are particularly in danger of becoming extinct. When senior members of a tribe or community that speak such languages pass away, these languages often perish with them, for often, no concerted actions or measures are taken to preserve or record these languages. Expressions of culture. Additionally, there has been a severe scarcity of skilled language teachers in India, despite various measures being taken. Language teaching too must be instructed to be more experiential and to focus on the ability to converse and interact in the language and not just on the literature, textbooks, and grammar of the language. Language must be used more extensively for communication and for teaching-learning. The promotion of Indian languages is possible only if they are used regularly and if they are used for teaching and learning. Initiatives, such as prizes for outstanding poetry and prose in Indian languages across categories, will be established to ensure vibrant poetry, novels, children books, textbooks, journals, and other works in all Indian languages. Proficiency in Indian languages will be included as part of qualification parameters for employment opportunities.
